Chayevsky Play Has Excellent Acting, Set

By CYRILLE MELROSE

Anyone in Indianapolis who misses the current production at the Jewish community center's theater-in-the-woods, "Middle of the Night," is missing one of the most excellent dramatic presentations seen here this year.

The slice-of-life drama by Paddy Chayefsky opened June 6, and will run for two more performances, this weekend, Saturday and Sunday, June 13-14. Tickets are $1.50 each and may be purchased at the door.

JOE ECKTMAN, supervisor of production, and Ida Blumenthal, stage manager and art director and their crews are to be congratulated in their professional-looking set which facilitated scene changes from one apartment to another in scant seconds.

In the story of a middle aged Jewish widower who falls in love with a non-Jewish girl half his age, Sol Blumenthal and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jacquelyn (David) Blumenthal were superb. Both of them depicted their roles with understanding that conveyed the utmost believability.

ANNETTE SIMKIN as the girl's mother, and Ann Reefer as the widower's maiden sister were both comic and serious in their parts, which were in contrast as foils to the main characters. The part of Lillian, the widower's daughter, played by Evelyn Cohen was equally well-done. The same was true of the remainder of the cast, most of whom had long enough parts to display their abilities. They are Fran Samuel, Ida Blumenthal, Rosalie Greenberg, Rosalind Bohard, Hike Kirsh and Mike Cohen.

PERHAPS the only slight criticism that can be leveled against the play is in its suitability as a vehicle for a Jewish community center group.

Any play which ends by breaking up a marriage must have more to the eventual action than just the whims of a girl who doesn't know what she wants out of life and a man whose head is turned by beauty only.

Nevertheless, Chayefsky has included in the play bits of business, humor or flavor that are unmistakably enjoyed by a Jewish audience, even though the realities that he so easily accepts are not universal.

IT IS somewhat disturbing that the dramatist displays the marriage between a non-Jew and a Jew in an almost nonchalant manner, their ages notwithstanding.

Taking Reservations

Mrs. Louis Fink has been named reservations chairman for the 11th annual dinner meeting of the Indianapolis Jewish Community Relations Council at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 24. Dinner chairman Mrs. Victor Teixler announced that Mrs. Fink will be aided by Mmes. Sigmund Beck, Max Klezmer, Philip Fichman, Morris Katz, Allen Dale, Joseph Greenberg and Samuel Sofnas. Decorations are being planned by Mmes. William P. Greenfeld and Lewis Osterman. Will Maslow, general council of the American Jewish Congress, will address the meeting which is open to the community.

IHC ELECTS SOL BLICKMAN

Sol Blickman has been elected president of Indianapolis Hebrew congregation, according to an announcement this week by Edwin Swirsley, executive secretary.

Other 1959-60 officers are vice-presidents, Richard Glasser and Alvin Cohen; secretary, Arthur Barrett; and treasurer, Liebert Mossler.

Simon Ackerman is retiring president.

JCC Pre-Teens Plan Vacation Party

A going-away party depicting vacation time in foreign lands is planned by the Jewish community center pre-teen division from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 17.

The event will also honor the graduating eighth graders in the division and welcome the new seventh graders.

Admission will be 25 cents per person.

Schahet Urges Drive Cleanup

An urgent appeal to all campaign workers who still have pledge cards to complete the solicitation of their prospect and turn in their card to the Jewish Welfare Federation office was made by Samuel Schahet, 1959 campaign chairman this week.

THUS FAR 1,800 contributors have given a total of $411,000 in pledges in the $600,000 drive.

"The results of our drive thus far have been most gratifying," Mr. Schahet commented. "However, we need to have the balance of the cards covered as quickly as possible in order to maintain our gains."

THE GENERAL solicitations division leads the list in coverage with more than 800 contributors who have given over $13,000. The women's division has 460 givers for a total of $67,500. The business and professional division has raised almost $30,000 from 175 contributors. The bulk of the gifts are in the advance gifts division which thus far has raised a total of $300,000.

Marlene Calderon Will To Former Ft. Benjamin Be Married Sunday Harrison Soldier

Miss Marlene Calderon will be married at 4:30 p.m. Sunday, June 14, at Congregation Beth-El Zedeck, to Elliott P. Smith, Brookline, Mass. Rabbi William P. Greenfeld will officiate.

MISS CALDERON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sander Leventhal, is a former receptionist at the Jewish community center. Mr. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Saul D. Smith, Brookline, completed Army service this spring. Formerly stationed at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, his last post was in Germany.

Bridal attendants will be maid of honor, Miss Sara Calderon, Rochester, N. Y., aunt of the bride; and bridesmaids, Mrs. Richard Bartick, Miss Diane Bryan, and Miss Michele Wides.

THE BRIDE will wear an imported silk taffeta gown with a portrait neckline, short sleeves and fitted bodice. Her princess line skirt will be banded in back to form a bouffant circular train applied with Alencon lace.

Attached to a tiara of orange blossom will be her three-tiered illusion veil.

The attendants will wear matching ballerina length gowns of coral silk organza over taffeta. The dresses will have fitted bodices with scoop necklines and cap sleeves.

BEST MAN will be Robert Smith, Brookline, brother of the bridegroom; ushers, Richard Bartick and Martin Parash; and junior ushers, Stanley Calderon and William Leventhal, brothers of the bride.

A dinner at Beth-El will follow the ceremony.

AFTER A WEEK'S stay in the Catskill mountains, the newlyweds will make their home in Brookline.

Parties given for the couple included:

AN OPEN house by the bridegroom's parents, May 3 in their home in Brookline; a miscellaneous shower by Miss Sara Calderon, Mrs. Abel Calderon, and Mrs. David Calderon, May 6 in Rochester, N. Y.; a luncheon by Mrs. Martin Kroot, May 16 at the home of Mrs. Abe Borin.

A personal shower by Mrs. Stanley Fogel, May 23 at the Hawthorne Room; a dinner party honoring the couple by Mr. and Mrs. Abe Miller, May 23 at Broadmoor country club; a miscellaneous shower by Mrs. Jack Leventhal, Mrs. Ruben Leventhal, Mrs. William Leventhal, Mrs. David Weintraub, and Mrs. Louis Wides, May 26 at Hollyhock Hill.

A brunch by Miss Diane Bryan June 7 at her home; a dinner party for out-of-town guests by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bartick and Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Smith, June 12 at Broadmoor country club; and a pre-nuptial party by the bride's parents, June 13 at home.

Benjamin Ira Born To Leon Harrises

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Harris, 4302 Bertrand rd., greeted their third child, Benjamin Ira, June 9, at Coleman hospital.

He joins Mark, 6½ and Paula, 3½.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harris,

Albany, N. Y., are the paternal grandparents, and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Kaszovitz, New New N. Y., are the maternal grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. Kaszovitz are expected here for the birth.

LEWIS YAVER MARRIES MISS MARSHA SUE LEVY

A double-ring ceremony united Miss Marsha Sue Levy and Lewis Milton Yaver in marriage Sunday afternoon, June 7, in Beth-El Zedeck temple.

RABBI William P. Greenfeld officiated.

Miss Levy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Levy, 5315 N. Pennsylvania, wore a silk organza gown fashioned with portrait neckline accented with re-embroidered Alencon lace, the lace repeated on a bouffant princess line skirt and on a detachable panel which formed a chapel train. Long sleeves formed points over the hands.

HER TWO-TIERED veil was caught up to a matching hat of imported Alencon, and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white aristocrat roses.

Mr. Yaver, son of Mrs. Samuel Yaver, 3540 N. Pennsylvania, accepted the bride from her parents.

MISS MARGOT LEVY, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Sharon Maurer, cousin of the bridegroom, and Miss Leslie Levy, cousin of the bride.

David Yaver, uncle of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Edward Burns, Dr. Richard Berger, Alvin Levenson, Marvin Silberman, Edward Frank, and Leonard Berman.

ALL THE bride's attendants wore bouffant ballerina-length gowns of white silk organza with portrait necklines and elbow-length sleeves. The embroidered lace on the necklines was repeated on flowing panels at the back. Matching white braid picture hats completed the ensembles.

In addition, the maid of honor carried a colonial-style bouquet of snow-white roses and pink aristocrat roses and streamers of white satin ribbon; while the bridesmaids carried colonial-style bouquets of pink briarcliff roses and snow-white roses with streamers of white ribbon.

A RECEPTION in the temple vestry followed the ceremony.

The couple will live at 3720 N Meridian after about June 20, when they return from a New York honeymoon.

A graduate of Tudor Hall school, the bride attended Michigan State and Butler universities. The bridegroom is an alumnus of Butler university, a graduate of Indiana university, and a member of Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (P-O)—Confirmed by the Senate, as U. S. Ambassador to Israel, Ogen Reid former New York newspaper publisher, is expected to leave for his post about July 1.

Mixed Seating Banned By State Supreme Court

LANSING, Mich. (WNS)—A ruling in favor of Orthodox Jews who sought to maintain separate seating arrangements for men and women in congregation Beth Tilla Moshe in Mt. Clemens was handed down this week by the Michigan Supreme Court, ending a five-year struggle which brought a deep rift in the Jewish community. When the majority of the congregation voted joint seating, the Orthodox members refused to worship in the synagogue.

The court ruled in a unanimous decision that a majority cannot alter religious ritual or custom, and that the effect of the majority's action was to deny property rights to the minority.

Abba Eban Breaks Silence, Calls For Aliya From U. S.

LONDON (P-O) — Speaking out for the first time on aliya (immigration) from American Jewry, Abba Eban, in an interview with The Jewish Chronicle here, showed surprisingly similarity with the views of his boss, Ben-Gurion.

Eban

The former Israel ambassador to the U.S., who throughout his career kept a diplomatic silence about the U.S. Jewish community, broke it to say that American Zionists should "identify themselves with Israeli statehood in a personal way through aliya."

Eban was delineating the difference between an American Zionist and an American non-Zionist supporter of Israel.

ASSERTING that there was no doubt but that the State of Israel was the product of the Zionist Movement, he declared that:

"This means that a Zionist has with Israel a relationship of greater intimacy than those Jews who were not associated with the saga of Zionist victory."

HE THEN went on to say that the difference between a non-Zionist Jew who is devoted to Israel and a Zionist is or should be "a difference of degree or intensity in their devotion to Israel."

He added, however, that the Zionist movement must face the challenge of making this distinction real.

IT WAS here that Eban called for American aliya.

Philip Klutznick, told the Israelis (P-O, May 29): "Importuning calls for wholesale migration (to Israel) are not only foredoomed to failure, but detrimental to Israel as a negative attitude toward Jewish life elsewhere." He warned Israel not to pin false hopes on the possibilities of any important immigration from U.S. Jewry and other free lands.)

ANOTHER means of attaining this distinction, Eban said, was to become "integrated with the culture, literature and language of Israel."

Eban had high praise, however, for the American non-Zionists:

"In world Jewry, and especially in American Jewry, the devotion to Israel transcends the limits of the Zionist Movement. At this very moment the largest non-Zionist Jewish organization, the B'nai B'rith, is holding its convention in Jerusalem; and such allegedly non-Zionist organization as the American Jewish Congress, the Jewish War Veterans, or even the American Jewish Committee never fail to respond to Israel's needs or oracles. At the head of the two most massive financial instruments of American Jewry in support of Israel are men and women who call themselves non-Zionists. (The two agencies are the United Jewish Appeal, and the Israel bond organization.)

2 Reform Congregations Add Selihot Services

NEW YORK (P-O) — Selihot services (the Sunday before Rosh Hashana) are making headway among Reform congregations, according to the Union of American Hebrew Congregations' Synagogue Service magazine.

Two congregations already planning selihot services for the first time this year are Temple Emanuel, Beverly Hills, Calif., and Beth Emeth the Free synagogue, Evanston, Ill.

Mamie Receives Jewish Aged at Lawn Party

The reception line at the lawn party given by Mrs. Eisenhower at the White House shows the First Lady giving an individual greeting to each of the folks living in the Hebrew Home for the Aged in Washington, D. C.

RESIDENTS OF HEBREW HOME FOR AGED
FIND MAMIE A GRACIOUS HOST

WASHINGTON, D. C. (P-O)—Thirty-five residents from the Hebrew Home for the Aged were guests at a special White House garden party and reception honoring this Capitol City's senior citizens now living in institutions.

EACH OF the excited ladies went down a special receiving line to meet and be greeted by First Lady, Mamie Eisenhower, who made certain she had each name properly pronounced and took the time to say something special and different to each one.

Meeting Mrs. Eisenhower was a very special birthday treat to Anna Swerdloff, for the occasion marked her 80th birthday. When Mrs. Eisenhower congratulated her on her birthday, Mrs. Swerdloff said how honored she was to meet the First Lady of the United States of America. The reply of the First Lady, "I am very glad to have that honor and distinction."

WHEN SHE took the hand of tiny Mrs. Dora Schlum, Mrs. Eisenhower exclaimed, "You're such a sweet little person. How do you feel?" Mrs. Schlum said, "I feel just fine, wonderful."

Asked her age, Mrs. Schlum acknowledged only 80 years; but Mrs. Mae Seigel, a nurse accompanying the Jewish ladies, said Mrs. Schlum erred by 13 years. The spry little woman is 93, and was the oldest of the 600 "mature" citizens at the party. She was accompanied by 83-year-old Mrs. Pauline Kaplan, who had never seen Mrs. Eisenhower and didn't realize until later that "the pretty lady in pink" was the President's wife.

ALL THE FOOD served was parve in character; and Mrs. Eisenhower had selected only such tea, sandwiches and pastries

Rabbi Offsets Bible
Distribution of Gideons

OTTAWA, Canada (P-O) — When the Gideon society began to distribute Bibles containing the New Testament to school children here, Rabbi Samuel Burstein offset the act by a distribution of his own. He gave a copy of the Jewish Bible to each of the grade school children of his own congregation.

"the best features of non-Marxian socialism and American free enterprise"— the words of Harris J. Levine's foreword.Throughout the author makes clear that the essentiality and cohesive power of Jewry is the Jewish tradition; he demolishes the self-blinded advocates of pure secularism in Israel—Israel is not "a nation like all the nations."COMING OF AGE, by Babette Deutsch, $3.95 (Indiana University Press).Over a period of 40 years Babette Deutsch (Yarmolinsky) has been one of America's leading poets of Jewish origin.From her previous volumes, and from previously unpublished verses, she has gathered the best of her work, as her "coming of age."To these poems, sometimes—it must be admitted—slightly unintelligible, as is the modern wont, she has added translations from several languages. With her husband's help, she has done a number of translations from the Russian. To the many who have followed the poet's career, and found joy in her prosodic skill and wisdom and tenderness, this anthology will prove a most pleasant reading experience.

New Zion Talis Atarah, Lurex Talis Fine Gift For Adult, Junior, Congregation Officers

You'll make a hit with your adult officers and the leaders of your junior congregation by presenting them with a talis or a talis ornament for outstanding achievement during the year.

The new talis atarah (shown here), developed by the Zion Talis Manufacturing Co., adds distinction to the officers' appearance at services. It is available in two different widths and over 15 designs, in gold or silver hand bullion, and is non-tarnishable.

The Atarah also comes in form-fitting style to fit the form-fitting talis worn by rabbis and cantors.

For your junior congregation officers and graduating students, the new lurex talis will be a cherished gift. Recently introduced by Zion Talis, it features gold or silver bars interwoven between the blue and white stripes and is recommended for children.

YAHRZEIT TABLET

Synagogues holding services weekdays in the chapel instead of the main sanctuary, where the bronze electric yahrzeit plaque is mounted, will find this small tablet very useful.

Designed to list one to six or more names of congregants observing yahrzeit, the tablet is produced by Kestenbaum and co. It is made of mahogany finish board and measures 12" x 14".

Each name is typed or printed on paper or cardboard and placed in metal holders.

The name of donor can be engraved for a nominal fee.

Fiery Israeli Songstress Belts Out 'Real' Spanish Lyrics

By JOSEPH GALE

A former Israeli corporal in skirts is the entertainer at the Chateau Madrid these days.

She is Hanna Aharoni, a comely, fine-featured singer of Latin-American songs with a good voice and a wide range. She headlines a smooth show that features The Cordolins—one girl with accordion and two with violins, songstress Candi Cortez, a flamenco guitarist and pair of Spanish dancers, and two orchestras. It's all over in an hour, and the time is decidedly well-spent.

Miss Aharoni, as a non-commissioned officer in the front lines, is supposed to have inspired her compatriots by singing them on to battle. If true, we can understand Israel's military achievements. She is fiery and electric. Everything about her performance—hands, arms, eyes, body. The songs are belted out with incredible vigor in a voice that ranges from the typical contralto of many Israeli singers to a reasonably high soprano, with fair coloratura equipment.

BORN IN Eritrea, the seventh of 10 children of a Yemenite father and an Eritrean mother, Miss Aharoni may pass for a Latin at first glance, certainly at first hearing. Her Spanish (language, characteristics, folklore) is considerable and apparently well-ingrained. She is said to have been indistinguishable from the real thing during her last engagement—eight weeks in theater, night club and television in Mexico City.

At Chateau Madrid, she puts on quite a show, coming north of the border for a single Israeli number, when the very heart of Israel throbs on the dance floor.

What is an Israeli maiden doing singing Latin songs? It has something to do with the way she got her start, but she is equally at home with Hebrew, Italian, French and Portuguese; and, as a popular folklorist, she is one of the freshest exports in some time. That's the word: fresh, and no smoke-filled room is going to make a difference.

1,000-Year-Old Gagaku Repertoire Contrasts Decidedly with Modern New York City Ballet

New Yorkers are getting an opportunity this season to attend one more native folk ensemble one whose art is more than 1,000 years old and is still enjoyed by contemporaries.

IN THE GROUP, called Gagaku, are the musicians and dancers of the Japanese Imperial Household.

Its repertoire, materially unchanged since the Dark Ages, glows in splendor and wonderment today on the stage of the New York City Center, where Gagaku is included in the NYC Ballet co. season. No contrast could be greater than Gagaku, on one hand, and modern ballet which follows it on all programs, on the other.

THE CLASSICAL dance of Japan, like its drama, is a cerebral passion. Its motion is infinitely measured and patient, highly stylized and established by ancient tradition. Moreover, movement is not an end by itself, but is symbolic of other things,

Your Name

Want to know what your name means? Address your questions to Mr. Pearlroth, National Jewish POST and OPINION, Box 1633, Indianapolis 6, Indiana.

By N. PEARLROTH

DEAR MR. PEARLROTH: I would greatly appreciate finding out the origin and meaning of my last name, SKYER. My grandfather came from the area around Vilna, Lithuania. In Lithuania I think his name was pronounced Skier.—MAX M. SKYER, Newburgh, N. Y.

SKYER is a name of geographical origin, being the Yiddish version of the name of the village of Skiery near Vilna, Lithuania. Skiery on the river Vilna had a population of 44 and was formerly owned by the Pilsudski family, ancestors of the Polish chief of state in 1918.

DEAR MR. PEARLROTH: Would you kindly let me know the origin and meaning of my last name — WILLENZIK — ? My father is from Kovno (Kaunas) in Lithuania. We always find your column interesting.—JULIUS WILLENZIK, New Orleans, La.

WILLENZIK, more correctly Wilencyk, is a family name of geographical origin. Its meaning is simply "a native of Vilna." Apparently your ancestors emigrated from Vilna to Kovno before 1804 when Russian Jews were ordered to assume permanent family names. The surname of the prime minister of the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland (Africa) Sir Roy Welensky has the same meaning as your name.

WHAT FOODS THESE MORSELS BE

TODAY IS THE HOLIDAY WHEN YOU OFFER FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

By SARAH LIEBER

Today, on Shavuot, our homes are traditionally decorated with beautiful flowers, fruits and vegetables. For this, besides celebrating the giving of the Law on Mt. Sinai, also celebrates the first fruits.

In Israel, the old customs of offerings have been revived. There, I am told, children come from all parts of the country with baskets of fruits and vegetables they themselves have grown.

From time to time I have mentioned some products from Israel. One of the best of these, to my mind, is the Telma line of soup cubes. As a matter of fact, a number of my readers have brought these soups to our attention. I got a letter not long ago from Anita and Shimon Win- celberg, from California, in which they extol the goodness of this product, and complain that only one store in their area stocks it. I became so much interested in Telma soups that I have asked for recipes. The ones I print below are exactly as given me by the Telma co.

Where necessary, I have translated the measurements to terms understood by the American Jewish cook. In Israel the metric system is used. I think you will enjoy these new ways of preparing foods. And I can give my whole hearted praise for the soups themselves.

A COMPLETE MEAL WITH TELMA BEAN SOUP

Cook Telma bean soup according to directions with two pairs of sausages. Spread four slices of white bread with a little crushed garlic and fry in margarine until golden brown. On each plate put two slices of fried bread, over which pour soup together with sausages.

MARROWS IN ASPARAGUS SOUP

(Marrows are known in this country as zucchini or green summer squash)
1 cube Telma asparagus soup
1½ cups milk
1 cup marrow stock
1 lb. young marrows (squash)

Score the skin of the young marrows and cut them into fingers (like asparagus). Cook them in one cup of water until they are nearly soft. Mix the crushed Telma asparagus soup cube in ½ cup of cold milk. Add one cup of marrow stock or another cup of warm milk, stirring all the time. Cook for a few minutes according to instructions. Cover the marrow fingers with the asparagus sauce, and here you have a dish which is difficult to tell from real asparagus. Serves five.

CAULIFLOWER IN MUSHROOM SOUP

1 cube Telma mushroom soup
1 cup milk
1 cup cauliflower stock
3 tbsps. sour cream
1 cauliflower head, about 1 lb.
Cook whole cauliflower in slightly salted water. Prepare mushroom sauce using directions on Telma cube, but with one cup milk and one cup stock. After cooking, add sour cream. Pour mushroom sauce over the hot cauliflower head. Serves five.

SAUCE BECHAMEL

2 tbsps. Telma (pareve) golden soup
2 tbs. margarine
2 tbsps. flour
1 cup boiling water
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. sweet paprika
pinch of pepper
½ cup milk or sweet cream
Melt margarine over low heat and stir in flour. Let this bubble.

INSIST ON THE BEST

Remove from heat. Dissolve the Telma golden soup in the boiling water and gradually stir in the margarine mixture. Return to stove. Bring to boil, stirring for two minutes. Blend in the seasoning. Pour in the milk or cream, stir until smooth. Serve hot over fish or vegetables, etc.

CHEDDAR CHEESE SOUP

2 tbsps. Telma (pareve) golden soup
5 cups hot water
2 onions, chopped
1 large potato, chopped
2 carrots, chopped
1½ cups hot milk
¼ lb. grated yellow cheese
Cook vegetables in water until tender and puree them through a sieve. Cook mixture for five minutes with golden soup. Remove from stove. Add hot milk. Serve at once with grated cheese and crackers.

CREAM OF PEANUT SOUP

1½ tbsps. Telma (pareve) golden soup
1½ tbsps. margarine
1 tbsps. cornstarch or flour
1½ cups boiling water
1½ cups hot milk
1 cup chopped peanuts
1 tbsps. grated onion
salt and cayenne pepper to taste
Mix cornstarch with melted margarine. Slowly add the milk, stirring until smooth. Put on fire. Add golden soup diluted with the water, peanuts, onion, salt and cayenne, stirring constantly. Bring to boil and simmer five minutes. Beat with a rotary beater one minute.

PEA SOUP COOLER

1 pkg. powdered Telma Pea soup
2 tbsps. Telma soup seasoning
6 cups boiling water
1 small carp (optional)
2 tbsps. grated onion
salt and pepper to taste
1 cup chopped beet tops or spinach
1 tbsps. chopped dill or fennel
1 tbsps. lemon juice or 2 tsps. sauerkraut juice
2 tbsps. sugar
1 bottle sour cream or lebenia (yoghurt)
1 fresh cucumber (optional)
1 hard cooked egg (optional)
Cook carp in water with salt and pepper and remove when done. Boil beet tops or spinach in fish stock and press through sieve into stock. Add pea soup, soup seasoning, onion, and dill and cook gently 10 minutes. Remove from stove and cool. Add lemon juice and sugar. Refrigerate. Before serving add swirl of sour cream and garnish with cucumber slices and hard cooked egg.

MINT PEA SOUP

2 cubes Telma pea soup
3 tbsps. olive oil or margarine
5 cups hot water
3 sprigs mint
3 cloves garlic
½ tsp. chili powder
2 tbsps. cornstarch mixed with ½ cup cold water
1 tsp. salt
2 eggs, well beaten
Fry garlic in oil. Add mint, cover and cook for a few minutes. Rub through sieve. Add other seasonings and cornstarch mixed with water. Add pea soup mixed with five cups hot water. Bring to boil and simmer seven minutes, stirring often. Put eggs in soup tureen and pour boiling soup over, very slowly, stirring briskly.

PEA CHOWDER (Herntrokka)

1 pkg. Telma pea soup
2 tbsps. margarine
2 quarts water
1 lb. fish fillet
2 onions
1 bay leaf
3 peppercorns
salt to taste
parsley and celery
½ cup flour
2 cups milk
Tie the bay leaf, peppercorns, parsley, celery and onion for later removal. (Note from Sarah: Use cheese cloth bag tied with white cord). Cook in water with fish for 15 minutes. Remove herbs and spices. Add Telma pea soup and simmer five minutes. Add margarine blended with the flour and milk. Cook five minutes more, stirring often.

WOMEN'S VIEWPOINT

HOW ORTHODOX, CONSERVATIVE, AND REFORM VIEW 'WHO IS A JEW?'

By HELEN COHEN

Now that we have gone into the matter of conversion of Judaism in the controversy on who is a Jew, let's go back once again to the traditional stand which states that any child born of a Jewish woman is automatically Jewish.

THIS STAND is mixed up with another traditional ruling, that if a Jew marries a non-Jew (who does not convert to Judaism) that marriage is not recognized.

This ruling goes back to Talmudic days and continues, in varying degrees, among the three branches of Judaism to be accepted today. While marriages are performed by rabbis of all three groups if the non-Jew first becomes a convert to Judaism, no Orthodox, Conservative, and practically no Reform rabbi will officiate at a mixed (non-converting) marriage, and rather logically so. If the couple don't intend to have a Jewish union, why go to a Jewish spiritual leader to perform the wedding ceremony?

IN THIS connection we add that while here in America (and also in Israel) the Orthodox do not accept anything but a Jewish wedding ceremony as legal, both Conservative and Reform recognize the legality of a civil marriage.

And life could get complicated with some of the resulting rulings, that is if there were more Jewish men who married non-Jewish women who did not convert, yet who eventually decided they wanted to become part of the Jewish community.

FOR INSTANCE, the Orthodox allow such a couple to join their synagogue on the grounds that the marriage is not recognized as legal, putting the couple in the position of living in sin but qualifying the man to join his synagogue as a member in good standing. The Conservative group, while accepting the legality of the civil rite, still feels that, not having been married according to Jewish Law, the couple is not, as a unit, qualified to represent itself as Jewish and therefore in no position to ask to join a Jewish temple. The Reform seem to be taking a similar stand to Conservatism on this, although I understand there have been such couples accepted as members in times past.

Going now to the fruit of such marriages, Orthodoxy, taking the traditional stand in not recognizing the marriage in the first place, therefore, does not, accept the child of the non-Jewish mother as a member of the Jewish community. In the case of a mixed marriage, with a Jewish woman and non-Jewish man who did not convert, the ruling was that, while according to tradition the marriage was not legal, still the child is automatically accepted as a Jew.

And this, at least up until the present day, did have its practical side, without any doubt. A child was and continues to be raised mostly under the influence of its mother.

AS FOR Conservatism and Reform, their positions on this question are that if the couple decide they wish to raise their children as Jewish they are welcome to do so under certain conditions. Conservatism expects the offspring of a non-Jewish mother (non-converted) to go through the usual conversion ceremony, while Reform feels that if the children are raised as Jews, including attendance at religious school, their confirmation ceremony "is considered fulfillment in lieu of conversion" (according to the Central Conference of American Rabbis).

The question then, why a Jewish father can't claim the same right of blood tie for his children as can the Jewish mother, is significant today for two reasons.

Today in America, and perhaps in other lands as well, the Jewish group is no longer in the position of scorned, helpless people exploited by the overwhelming majority. In an earlier day, even in America, it was conceded by the Jewish group that any Jew marrying a non-Jewish woman was automatically lost to the Jewish people and the children of this marriage, brought up in their mother's environment, would follow her footsteps.

TODAY THERE is a likelihood that while the non-Jewish wife may balk at converting because she herself has no wish to change from her youthful upbringing, in due time, with the coming of children, she may acknowledge that her husband's and his parents wishes on the the religion of his offspring have a right to be heard also, and she may decide to abide by those wishes.

Catholicism appears to be rather realistic on this score. They don't ask the non-Catholic to convert before being accepted as a marriage partner. They simply require that the children of the union be raised as Catholic.

And in the second place, for the first time in two thousand years, the state of Israel is once again a reality, and with it have emerged such situations as religious (Orthodox) marriage being the only legally accepted union.

We in America may have trouble visualizing the possibilities over there.

ONE OF those possibilities is described by Rabbi Jay Kaufman in the Congress Bi-Weekly:—

"A Jew in contemporary Russia, born of a Jewish mother, who may never have been circumcised (circumcision is fairly infrequent even today in Russia) who has come to hate Jews and despise their way of life, is still, according to Jewish law, regarded as a Jew.

"Another Jew may have been born of a Jewish mother and a Gentile father and may have been completely estranged from Jews and Judaism all his life, but he, too, is considered a Jew according to the Halaha.

"Yet an Israeli born to a Jewish father and non-Jewish mother, who speaks Hebrew, cherishes the Bible . . . attends Israeli schools, revels in Jewish history, observes the festivals, and acts as a Jew in every way . . . is fully identified with his land and people, is not considered a Jew."

Reform's attitude, here in America, as it appears to be shaping up, is that the children of a Jewish woman (according to the traditional ruling) are automatically Jewish, and those born of a Jewish man will be recognized as Jewish if the effort to rear him as a Jew is made by his parents. Otherwise, with a non-Jewish mother and non-Jewish upbringing, he must be considered a non-Jew.

Don't Accept First Date, Warns Rabbi on Inter-marriage

By BOB GAMZEY

Editor: Intermountain Jewish News

DENVER, Colo.—Don't accept that first date!

This was the advice of Rabbi Daniel Goldberger to high school graduating seniors to avoid inter-dating in college and the pitfalls of intermarriage.

WARNING OF tragic family conflicts arising from mixed marriages, the Beth Joseph rabbi said marital adjustments are difficult at best without injecting the complications and underlying tensions of religious differences.

He reported intermarried couples have told him that even though they have found marital happiness, they would not marry out of their religion if they had to do it over again.

HE EXPLAINED to the high school graduates who have attended Beth Joseph religious school that the entire complex of simhas—brit, baby naming, bar mitzva, weddings, holidays and other religious observances—are spoiled by the tensions and conflicts of intermarriage.

"If you avoid that first date," he cautioned, "you will save yourself a lot of trouble and make your life happier, and save your family much unhappiness."

WHAT ABOUT YOUR GROUP?

What B'nai B'rith has been able to do—to hold a successful convention in Israel—can be done by other U.S. Jewish organizations.

IT IS NOT the easiest thing to stage such a convention, but the rewards are tremendous.

If the American Jewish Committee were to hold its next convention or the one after that in Israel, it would be charging its top leadership with almost the finest Jewish inspiration possible.

THE AMERICAN Jewish Congress most certainly should try to emulate the B'nai B'rith for its Zionist ties are certainly the strongest of any Jewish group outside of the organized Zionist bodies.

Then what about Hadassah? It would be a natural for this brilliant group of Jewish women to hold a convention in the Jewish state.

AND OUR RABBINICAL groups, the joy of holding their convention in Israel would be unbounded.

B'nai B'rith has broken the ice and the way is clear for other Jewish groups to emulate the boldness of this fine Jewish organization in going 6000 miles to the Jewish state to hold its convention.

In this connection we want to point up how important it was for a more mature understanding between American Jewry and Israel for the Israelis to have a chance to see and hear the B'nai B'rith people.

IF WHAT PHIL Klutznick had to say about American Jews not coming to Israel had come from the mouth of a leader of the American Council for Judaism, it would have been discounted. If his courageous frontal attack on those who think of American Jews as slackers because they stay in the U.S. had come from a member of the American Jewish Committee, it would not have had the proper effect.

But coming from the one man who played so important a role in bringing the U.S. Jewish community around to a Zionist position, the words could not be treated as other than sincere and significant. Even though Ben-Gurion challenged Mr. Klutznick's views, he had to preface his remarks by saying he did not want to get into any controversy with American Jewish leaders over aliya. troversy with American Jewish leaders over aliya.

MR. KLUTZNICK feels strongly about the development of a positive Jewish community in the U.S., and his position is that a Jew can live in a democracy like the U.S. and develop creatively as a Jew. The diaspora is not exile.

We concur in these views.

We add only that aliya to Israel and development of a strong U.S. Jewry are not by any means contradictory. In fact they supplement one another, and each will play a role in the future of world Jewry.

DO WE WANT U.S. ALIYA?

Rose Halprin's talk before the actions committee of the World Zionist organization made sense in some parts, but in others was an attempt to gloss over the failures of American Zionism.

AT ONE POINT, when she asserted that if 5,000 American Jews were to present themselves for settlement in Israel in a day, Israel wouldn't know what to do with them, she was demagogic. If 5,000 Rumanian immigrants were to present themselves at Haifa in one day, the problem would be no less complicated.

The sense in Mrs. Halprin's talk was her caution that Israel wanted to telescope time, and develop an American aliya (immigration) before the education process of inculcating deep Jewish values into American Jewish youth would breed the candidates for this aliya.

ISRAELIS WILL understand this, but what Mrs. Halprin failed to mention was that nothing was being done in American Zionism to begin that education. On the contrary, whatever education toward aliya there is has been the negative kind, with American Zionist leaders avoiding even the discussion of aliya as if it were a plague.

The post mortem on the failure of American Zionism is a healthy one. The attempt of Dr. Nahum Goldmann to bring non-Zionists into the Jewish Agency in an advisory capacity probably stimulated this discussion.

WHAT NEEDS TO be done now is to carry this discussion over into the American Jewish community.

Someone at the actions committee deplored the fact that there were no young men being attracted to the Zionist movement. This is so factual that in a matter of another 10 years Zionism in the U.S., as we have known it, will no longer exist.

WE CAN'T OMIT a parting shot at Mrs. Halprin

We attended a conference of all Zionist bodies in New York, about five years ago, which sought to set up a separate Zionist apparatus to stimulate American aliya. The record will show that Mrs. Halprin's lack of enthusiasm put up enough stumbling blocks to bring the procedure to a stalemate from which it never recovered.

FRIDAY, JUNE 12, 1959

The EDITOR'S CHAIR . . .

About half the Americans who pull up their stakes here and go to Israel to live, return bitterly disappointed.

THEY COME back for a number of reasons, the principal two of which are their inability to adapt to the Israeli mode of living and the lack of suitable living quarters.

South African Jews who go to Israel do not have a housing problem. The South African Zionist Federation has arranged long-term loans which make it possible for those who accept the challenge of aliya to purchase adequate housing or lease homes at low interest rates.

IF THE NEWCOMER is from Eastern Europe or North Africa he is provided housing by the Jewish Agency (whose funds come principally from the United Jewish Appeal) at interest rates which are so nominal as to be unimportant.

Have you ever moved into a new city?

IF YOU HAVE, you know that your first problem is to locate an apartment, or rent a room or a house, depending on what your needs are. After that you begin to inquire about other wants that have to be satisfied, such as Jewish affiliation, schooling, etc.

So you can recognize just how important it is for an American Jew going to Israel to find some place to house himself or his family before he begins to integrate into Israel life.

WHEN MOSHE KOHN, our former managing editor, left for Israel almost two years ago, he was fulfilling a life-long dream.

A Hebrew scholar, he translated novels for Simon and Schuster from Hebrew into English. As managing editor of The POST and OPINION, he became a qualified expert on Jewish life in the U.S.

TO FIND A HOME took him months and months and then he was unable to pay the more than $5,000 required for key money. This is not a down payment on a house, this is a flat payment that must be made when one rents an apartment or a house from the previous tenant. Rents in Israel are limited by law. Key money enables owners of property, whose position is justified by the need to pay taxes and take care of the property, to earn a fair return on their investment.

This then explains in large part why of the desperately few Americans who do move to Israel such a large proportion return disillusioned to the U.S.

THE AMERICANS and Canadians in Israel finally this year moved to take the matter in their own hands, after their yearly appeals to the Jewish Agency and other Zionist organizations met with rebuffs.

The Association has set up its own mortgage plan, and at present an apartment house for Americans is going up in Jerusalem. The American Zionist organizations, including the ZOA and Hadassah, are lending their support to this mortgage fund. It has the approval of Israel.

UNDER IT, mortgage bonds are being sold at 5 per cent interest, payable in American dollars. The bonds mature in 25 years, and at that time the principal is paid back in Israel pounds.

It is not an attractive investment for those who want large returns for their money and have no feeling for this need to make it possible for those Americans who go to Israel to find housing of a standard not equal to Westchester county but at least to take care of the essentials.

HOLDERS OF ISRAEL bonds may exchange these for the mortgage bonds, and this approach has the wholehearted approval of the Israel treasury.

We're telling you about this in the hopes that a good many of you will be willing enough to be helpful in this project, and will write to me for brochures giving you explicit details. We want 50 readers of The POST and OPINION to subscribe to these mortgage bonds as our quota. We hope you won't let us down.

The Histadrut Elections: Key to the National Character

By RABBI JACOB J. WEINSTEIN
KAM Temple Chicago

The recent elections in Israel, among the parties contained within the Histadrut, which I was privileged to witness, would be instructive to any student of political science.

It is as though the various shades of political opinion within the AFL-CIO were to hold an election to determine which one of them could speak most authoritatively for organized labor on parison, I recognize, immediately reveals the wide national issues. The gap between the political maturity of the Israeli worker and his American counterpart.

Rabbi Weinstein THE HIGH level of discussion was another remarkable feature of this campaign.

While indeed they were not free of personalities, and some of the maneuvering by which, for instance, the Herut directed its members to cast their votes for Achdut Avodah would be worthy of the worst of Boss Tweed and Tammany, there was nevertheless a great deal of hard debate on such complicated issues as inflation, unemployment insurance, national health insurance, seniority in layoffs, and the extremely delicate and complicated issues of the gradual transfer of Histadrut responsibilities, for schooling and preventive medical research, to the government.

AMERICAN AUDIENCES which have been accustomed to hear Ben-Gurion, Golda Meir, Moshe Sharett, Abe Harmon, and Joseph Burstein at their statesmanlike best would have seen them in quite a different role as zealous, hard-hitting partisans. Fortunately we would understand this change of role, even as we must accept the fact that the President of the Nation must, during elections, become the managing director of his party.

Another interesting phenomenon was the rise of new leadership.

THE GULF BETWEEN Ben-Gurion and any possible successor has been until now a real national handicap.

The Histadrut election revealed two personalities who may be able to capture the national imagination—if they learn some political savvy. They are both military heroes: Moshe Dayan and Yigal Alon. And while Dayan calls for greater austerity and doubts that a pioneer country can afford the social benefits which his party, Mapai, has won for the worker and while Alon insists to the contrary that these social benefits make the Israeli worker an effective fighter because he has a stake in his personal dignity as well as the security of the country, they both look upon national problems as problems in logistics.

DAYAN, FOR AN example, believes that a contrived unemployment will force people into the Negev and the border colonies.

It is this scene which Abba Eban will soon join and it will be a test of his political toughness and a crucial omen of his availability for top leadership if he will be able to descend, like Jordan, from the Hermon of United Nations debate to the bitter salt sea of Israeli domestic politics and still keep the aura of holy water, the corona of oracle to the world. I join the many Israeli who pray that he will be able to do so.

NEVERTHELESS, the overarching impression left by these elections was that of the political maturity of the Israeli labor electorate.

They returned Mapai to power, even at a slightly reduced majority, and this augurs well that the middle-of-the-road, social democrat Mapai will retain this or a larger majority in the kneset next November.

THE ELECTIONS were a moral victory for Mapai, since they came out only slightly diminished, after bearing responsibility for 10 years for some very painful decisions and in spite of a collusive effort on the part of all the opposition parties to embarrass Mapai and destroy its majority.

But it was even a greater moral victory for the Histadrut electorate. In spite of unrelieved tensions and hardships, which any other electorate could have made the ruling party a sacrificial scapegoat, the people, recognizing the need for continuity and stability, recognizing also the ultimate integrity and patriotism of the Mapai leadership, returned them to power.

These elections do not have the glamour of a Sinai campaign, but they are equally revealing of the tough, heroic character of the Israeli population.

Groom Shouldn't Drink Whiskey Either

CONSERVATIVE RABBI WANTS FASTING ON WEDDING DAY

NEWARK (P-O)—A leading Conservative rabbi said here this week that he would "like to see better observance of the Jewish tradition of the bride and groom fasting on their wedding day."

Rabbi Louis M. Levitsky, writing in his Oheb Shalom bulletin, deplored the lack of dignity at present-day Jewish weddings.

"There is something most inconsistent," he wrote, "with the religious seriousness of the ceremony to have the young man take a drink before it."

He suggested also that the "groom's attendants . . . eliminate the unseemly levity to which they so often resort before the ceremony."

Rabbi Levitsky also placed a taboo on taking pictures or making recordings of the wedding in the synagogue.

"We don't make recordings of a Sabbath service and for the same reason we don't make recordings of the wedding service."

Reaction to Anti-Semitism Charge In Strauss Confirmation Healthy

WASHINGTON (WNS)—President Eisenhower, replying to a question at his press conference whether he agreed with the charge made by some Republican lawmakers that anti-Semitism was a factor in the Congressional opposition to Admiral Lewis L. Strauss, replied that it would be "tragic" if the issue of anti-Semitism were brought forward in that connection.

THE CHARGE that religious motivation was a factor in the opposition to Admiral Strauss was made by Senator Hugh Scott, Pennsylvania Republican, who called the Strauss case another Dreyfus affair. The American people, he declared, will react "solidly in criticism of the attempt to deny the confirmation of the nomination of Mr. Strauss as the general public reacted to the Dreyfus case when Emile Zola wrote his 'J Accuse.'"

"Another Republican lawmaker, Representative Steven B. Derouin of New York, said he 'still' refuses to believe that anti-Semitism was involved but that 'it is being impressed on me constantly that the opposition to Mr. Strauss, in reality, is based on religious prejudices. If that is true,' he said, 'it revolts me as an American citizen.'"

HOWEVER, Senator Jacob K. Javits, New York Republican, called the issue of anti-Semitism a "pretty slippery business," declaring it would be "a disservice to American Jewry and to the American people generally if it were not once and for all disposed of in the Senate. The other N. Y. Republican Senator, Kenneth B. Keating, said he associated himself with his colleague's statement.

Meanwhile it was disclosed by Senator Wayne Morse, Oregon Democrat, that he had been told by two "prominent" Jewish leaders that their offices had received "a great many calls making the allegation." He termed the imputation of anti-Semitism motivation to the Strauss opposition "vicious propaganda" without "a scintilla of truth."

AT THE SAME time the American Congress stepped into the picture with a message to the members of Congress urging disregard of the issue of religion in voting for or against Strauss' appointment to the post of Secretary of Commerce. The Congress message said "to oppose Admiral Strauss because of his religion would be despicable" and that "to fear to oppose him because such opposition might be regarded as anti-Semitism would be equally unworthy of any true American."

Suit Against B'nai B'rith Thrown Out of Court

WASHINGTON (WNS) — A $50,000 libel suit brought against the B'nai B'rith chapter of Arlington, Va., by hate-monger George Lincoln Rockwell was thrown out of court by Judge Emery Hosmer of the Arlington circuit court.

Rockwell filed suit, claiming damage to his reputation, when the Arlington chapter of B'nai B'rith called him an anti-Semite following his distribution of anti-Jewish hate literature. The court held, since Rockwell admitted distributing hate-engendering literature, he could not properly claim that his reputation had been damaged by the B'nai B'rith statement.

Immigration Jews Banned In Israel

JERUSALEM (P-O) — As an aftermath of the abrupt ceasing of immigration from Rumania, the Israel Government has invoked the State Secrets Law to prohibit publication of information on any immigration. The ruling, published in the official gazette here, permits only official government statements on the subject or a declaration by the prime minister.

Israel To Get Same Grant-In-Aid

WASHINGTON, D. C. (P-O)—Following action by the House Foreign Affairs Committee stipulating a continuance of grant-in-aid to Israel, the State Department announced this week that the grant will be continued during the coming fiscal year at the current level. The current amount is $7.5 million.

Council Hears Attack On U.S. Jews' Loyalty

NEW YORK (P-O) — The American Council for Judaism this week lent its name to the demand of Sen. Ralph E. Flanders of Vermont for an examination of the tax-exempt status of the United Jewish Appeal.

THE NEW YORK Chapter of the anti-Zionist organization provided the platform for the charges of political activity against the UJA, which the Senator had previously made in the U. S. Senate.

Flanders added, however, the more serious charge of dual loyalty, and made the most open accusation of disloyalty of U. S. Jews ever heard from the mouth of a high elected official.

FLANDERS charged that "many citizens of Jewish faith seek a relationship with the foreign state of Israel which is different from that which other Americans have with Israel and different from that which Jewish citizens themselves want with any other nation."

He asserted bluntly that "these individuals and organizations are content to have American national policies as to military and economic assistance determined by our federal government—for all nations except Israel alone. For that nation they solicit vast sums which are in part used for relief, in part for economic assistance and in part for political purposes, all under the benefits of tax-free contributions."

FLANDERS stated that he is "fearful" lest the cloud of "conflict of interests" settle over those who pressure American business and government leaders on behalf of Israeli governmental policies.

He declared:

"Every citizen has the right to petition the United States Government for a change of policy. But he must do so either as an individual or as part of a voluntary American agency fully committed to America's welfare. That is not the case when American citizens adopt the 'line' of a foreign agent and petition the American government for whatever that agent desires for his government."

"YET THIS IS precisely what happens when the Jewish Agency—which is listed with the Attorney-General as a foreign agent—obtains broader Jewish support for a policy which the Israeli Government wants the United States Government to adopt."

"Further confusion results when philanthropy is mixed into this serious political matter because the bulk of funds raised by the United Jewish Appeal go to that same Jewish Agency for Israel. And the Jewish Agency, as the arm of the World Zionist Organization, has many strictly political functions the world over."

SPEAKING ON his demands to investigate the UJA, he said:

"This proposal aroused great interest, some valued support and much opposition. Among those responding were many of my Jewish friends who had felt

Judaism Council Should Recant

The sponsorship by the New York Chapter of the American Council for Judaism of a talk which attacks the very basis of Jewish communal support for overseas needs calls for a reassessment of the aims and purposes of the anti-Zionist organization by the U. S. Jewish community.

WHEN THE Council took the position that it could no longer support the United Jewish Appeal, and set up its own fund-raising organization, this was its prerogative. Whether you agree with this divorcing of themselves from organized Jewish life in this way, you cannot argue that they did not have the right to take this action.

When however the Council supports a view that would destroy the UJA by giving a platform to a Senator who repeated his demands that the tax-exempt status of the UJA be re-examined by the internal revenue department, this is an entirely new matter.

NO ORGANIZATION, whether Jewish or not, is perfect. The UJA, as this paper's editorial position has indicated, is not without fault in some aspects of its work.

But fundamentally it is an inspiring organization, manned almost entirely by public-spirited Jews who give of their time and effort, and supported almost 100 per cent by every thinking U.S. Jew.

This is because it is a fine example of Jewish activity at its best, helping immigrants to find new homes, succoring the poor and the lame and the halt and the blind in Israel, and making possible the resettlement of hundreds of thousands of Jews from lands where they lived in indescribable poverty.

ALL THIS THE American Council for Judaism knows, and knows well.

This being so, the Council has no right to support a view which would undermine the UJA.

Any investigation of the UJA's tax-exempt status would give it a clean bill of health. It could not be otherwise.

But this would not alter the fact that the Council in its blind hatred of Zionism is willing to destroy the UJA.

THE RIGHT OF Sen. Flanders to request the examination is not in question. Any investigation of UJA allocations will show that this great humanitarian agency is among the most noble instruments of man's effort to aid the underprivileged and the unfortunate.

But the position of the American Council for Judaism is something else again.

The organization has now become in truth anti-Semitic, and as such will sacrifice its place in Jewish life unless it recants.

THE COUNCIL FOR Judaism is a phenomenon of American Jewish history which perhaps could not have been otherwise in view of the turmoil in Jewish life in the past 25 years. That does not lessen the tragedy, which is slowly approaching the crisis point.

Perhaps this crisis also is inevitable, and the turning of the Council away from its destructive position to one of opposition with some semblance of loyalty to the Jewish group may be at hand. We most devoutly hope so.

that my earlier position most vitriolic McCarthyite among helpful in preserving the rights my critics in the newspaper and of American citizens of the Jew- broadcasting field visited me in ish faith. I. S. Lazeros On Honeymoon

A single-ring afternoon ceremony in Congregation Beth-El Zedek May 31 united Frances Calderon and Israel Samuel Lazeros. Rabbi William P. Greenfield officiated.

The new Mrs. Lazeros is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Calderon, 6007 Crows Nest dr., and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lazeros of Memphis, Tenn. are the groom's parents.

Acting as matron of honor was Mrs. Stanley Zellner of Memphis, and the maid of honor was Estelle Calderon.

BRIDESMAIDS were Misses Janet Sue Calderon and Marsha Becker; Renee Zellner of Memphis was junior bridesmaid, and Cynthia Calderon was flower girl.

The attendants all wore lavender silk organza and lace ballerina-length gowns, and the flower girl was in white silk organza trimmed with lavender appliques.

Mrs. Lazeros's gown was of silk organza trimmed with appliques of re-embroidered Alencon lace. It had a portrait neckline, short sleeves, and a full skirt extending into a chapel train.

SHE CARRIED a white orchid and lily of the valley on top of a white prayer book.

The groom chose Stanley Zellner of Memphis for his best man. Ring bearer was Alan Zellner and the ushers were Louis Yousha, Stephen Becker and Harvey Schuchman.

The bride attended Indiana university, and Mr. Lazeros is a graduate of the University of Miami.

After a reception, tea dance, and buffet dinner, the couple left on a wedding trip to Nassau. They will make their home in Kansas City, Mo.

Monument Unveiling For Nesha Sakowitz

A monument will be unveiled in memory of Nesha Sakowitz at 2 p. m. Sunday, June 21, at Shara Tefilla cemetery.

Rabbis Moses Magnes, Nandor Fruchter, and Cantor Yitzchok Jade will officiate.

Friends and relatives are invited.

Well, I'm back again, and I'll be here to stay for a while (I hope). Before I get into the "latest," I'd like to congratulate Elaine Reuben on the wonderful job she did on this column this past year and wish her the best of luck at Brandeis university next year.

WITH THE end of the spring social season in sight the whirl usually dies down, but it isn't dead in Naptown yet. P.O.K. is scheduling a hayride on June 19. Swank will be the host to an outdoor party in the afternoon and evening of June 14. Link will offer its spring dance a little late this year—June 20 at the Sheriton-Lincoln hotel.

Other "doings," now a week old, were the Deb-Ette installation dinner at Hollyhock Hill and the Temple Teen dinner-dance for the installation of new officers, MC'd by Bernie Herman (both on June 7). In town for the Temple Teen affair were: Steve Hallert, Evansville; Sandy Zimmerman, Muncie; Joan Vigran, Richmond; Jack Hertz, and Judy Schwartz, Muncie.

AT THE END of a year it is customary to elect officers for the coming season. New POK officers are: president, Stu Seligman; vice-president, Herbie Frankowitz; treasurer, Harvey Schushman; corresponding secretary, Ed Zukerman; recording secretary, Marty Gelman.

New Link officers are: president, Madeline Glansman; vice-president, Marlene Winkel; treasurer, Dianna Glasal; secretary, Rene Butchco; dance chairman, Elaine Goldfarb.

The USY is sponsoring a trip to Cincinnati on June 15. It is an intercity conclave. Representing USY at the summer regional board meeting in Canton, Ohio, are Bennie Goldstein, Rena Gold, and Sid Miller. Mrs. Joseph Miller is the new advisor for the group.

AT JCCA things are booming. The teen board is busy planning summer activities, among them a splash party. Bill Claymon is the teen lounge committee chairman. A club is being formed for those who can swim or dive pretty well. If interested, call Sid Miller.

Did you know that... Howard Lichtenberg was in St. Vincent's hospital on June 10 for an operation... Louise Goldman is working part time at Block's... Robyn Grant is going to Tudor Hall next year... you can phone any news to me... the new members of POK and Swank are to be congratulated.

Antlers Hotel Wedding Unites Arlene Rabin, Harold Bortz

Miss Arlene Beverly Rabin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rabin, 518 E. 58th st., and Harold Bortz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Bortz, 1101 Union st., were married Sunday afternoon, June 7, in the Antlers hotel.

RABBI Nandor Fruchter and Cantor Yitzchok Jade, both of B'nai Torah congregation, officiated.

A reception followed the ceremony. A dinner for the immediate family was held later.

THE BRIDE wore a gown of spring taffeta with white basque bodice of chantilly sabrina. Her neckline was adorned in sequins and seed pearls. Along her arms, her gown was topped by short-sleeved and lace mitts. Tiny silk-covered buttons accented her back. A bouffant skirt was highlighted by a diagonal garland of lace and in the center by a butterfly bow, extending into a chapel train.

A nylon illusion waist-length veil showered from a pearl Swedish crown highlighted by crystal drops.

SHE CARRIED white orchids and blue delphiniums.

The maid of honor, Miss Deanna Rabin, sister of the bride, wore a gown of blue organdy over blue taffeta, with a scooped neckline and harem ballerina-length skirt.

BRIDESMAIDS Miss Benita Bortz, niece of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Emily Gellerman wore silk organza with full ballerina-length skirts with bows.

The bride's mother wore blue spring taffeta and the bridegroom's mother blue lace.

MATRON OF HONOR was Mrs. Florence Sinker, Washington, D. C., aunt of the bride.

Best man was Abe Bortz, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Bernard Frankovitz, Ronald Gurvitz, and Bernard Gellerman.

Home for the couple will be 6260 Broadway.

South Bend Girl Wins Family Grant; Gives It To Charity

SOUTH BEND (P-O) — This year Temple Beth-El presented a $500 award in memory of Will Welber to his granddaughter, Susan, which she will donate to charity.

Nine years ago the Welber family established a generous grant to be presented to the Jewish young man or woman who had shown the greatest interest or aptitude in furthering the cause of Judaism.

THIS WOULD be done through the promotion of, and participation in Jewish and communal activities.

The $500 annual prize was awarded to Miss Welber after she was selected by the committee as the young person in the community who fulfilled all the provisions of the grant. She made it clear that she was not accepting the money, however, but would donate it to a charitable cause.

SUSAN IS A member of the 1959 John Adams high school graduating class, and was one of its two valedictorians. She had served as National Honor Society vice-president, and also president of the Beth-El youth group. She has also served as conclave manager of the Michigan Federation of Temple Youth, and as Jewish co-chairman of the junior roundtable of the National Council of Christians and Jews.

The Welber family also gives an annual $500 grant for the promotion of institutes on Judaism, inter-faith activities and the sponsorship of cultural and educational programs.
